Burnt Out In Biscuit Land – Relaxed Performance Overview

Every performance of Burnt Out In Biscuit Land will be relaxed. Here is an overview of what this means:

- We know that attention looks different for different bodies and minds. For some people this might involve making noises or moving around.
- You can leave and come back in at any time.
- There will be an announcement at the start of the show explaining that it is a relaxed performance.
- Venue staff and performers will confidently welcome people who move and make noise into the performance space.
- A Visual Story that uses words and pictures to explain what to expect from the show can be found on the booking page.
- Ear defenders will be available for anyone to use during the show. These will have been carefully cleaned before each use.
- There will be a chill-out area outside the main performance space which can be used at any time during the show.
